

New Talk Site Urged on Reds By U.N. Chief

Ridgway Suggests Joint Selection
Of New Spot for Peace Talks

TOKYO, Sept. 6 (Thursday) (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway today suggested to the Reds that a new site be chosen for the Korean truce talks in order "to achieve a just and honorable military armistice."

The supreme Allied commander thus sought to bring about resumption of the talks which began July 10 at Kaesong and were suspended Aug. 23 by the Reds.

The Reds broke off the talks, charging that an Allied plane bombed Kaesong the night before. Since then the Reds have made a series of such charges, all denied by the Allies.

Ridgway in a press release said: "I propose a liaison officer be immediately dispatched at the bridge at Panmunjom (six miles east of Kaesong) to discuss the selection of a new site where negotiations can be continued without interruptions."

Events of the past weeks have made it plainly evident to me and to the world at large that further use of the present conference site at Kaesong will inevitably result in additional interruptions of our armistice talks and further delays in reaching agreements.

"When you decide to terminate the suspension of armistice negotiations which you declared on 23 August, Allied and Communist officers should be at Panmunjom to consider the new conference site."

Fighting Flares Anew On West Korea Front

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 6 (Thursday) (AP)—Hard fighting broke out today in West Korea 35 miles north of Seoul for the first time in months. Allied planes knocked out two Russian-type tanks.

It was too early to say if the action was a flurry or if it marked the beginning of a big Communist offensive expected across Korea from 700,000 Reds, including thousands of Caucasians and a 1,000-plane air force.

The fight, between Allied troops and a Red battalion, broke a lull in the west which had prevailed even before the start July 10 of the now-suspended Kaesong truce talks.

The two tanks were among eight T-34s—standard Russian tank in the Second World War—which rumbled into action near Yonchon. That highway point is six miles north of the 38th parallel and 35 miles north of Seoul.

A field dispatch from the front by A.P. correspondent Sam Sumnerlin said "furious ground fighting raged today west of Yonchon."

Sumnerlin said another Red battalion was moving up to support the one engaged by the Allies. Red artillery and mortars pounded U.N. positions.

Defense Delay Disturbs Reeve

Oak Bay Reeve P. A. Gibbs, said yesterday he was "disturbed by the delay and rising costs of the Victoria civil defense organization plans."

"We are not moving fast enough to get the work done," he said. "People are becoming restive."

He appointed municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave to delegate an Oak Bay staff representative to the coming defense organization drill.

Use of Force Advocated To Keep Out Doukhobors

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Sylvia J. Smith, Coalition member of the legislature for Kamloops, in a speech over radio station CFJC today called upon district residents to prevent by "forceful means" the establishment of a Doukhobor colony at nearby Adams Lake.

"If the authorities consider this an incitement to riot, then I will welcome that development."

Peace Pact Parley Palls

While today's Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco kept millions glued to their radio and television receivers, at least four persons in the balcony of the city's opera house, convention site, fell asleep during the afternoon session. In sharp contrast is the intense interest shown by an unidentified U.S. Army officer. (AP Wirephoto.)

Average Victoria Wages Continue Upward Trend

Victoria's weekly wages continue to show gains over wage levels prevailing last year, according to figures prepared by the trade and industry department.

At June 1 of this year the average weekly wage in Victoria was $18.97, compared with $14.67 at the same date in 1950.

The British Columbia average was $22.66 on June 1, compared with $17.38 a year earlier.

Vancouver wage-earners were getting an average of $19.45 a week at the beginning of June this year, compared with $15.30 a year earlier.

Index of employment in the non-agricultural industries of B.C. on June 1 stood at 197.7, a gain from 187.2 on May 1 and 182.1 on June 1, 1950. The index is figured on a 1939 base of 100.

The internal trade picture showed that department stores registered a 4-per-cent increase in the dollar value of sales in June of this year over June of 1950.

Sales of department stores for the first six months of this year were valued at $53,920,000, compared to $48,320,000 in 1950, a gain of 11.6 per cent.

Index of wholesale sales in B.C. dropped from 411.5 in May to 421.2 in June of this year.

It is estimated gasoline consumption in the province will probably reach a new record for the current year. Consumption of gasoline during the first six months exceeded the same period last year by more than 15 per cent.

Electric power consumption has also been running at a high level for the first half of the year, with consumption currently 7.43 per cent greater than during the same period of 1950.

Production figures show total timber sealed in B.C. during the first half of the year is 22 per cent higher than during the corresponding period of 1950. Forest closures caused by drought are expected to result in a drop in timber scale during July and August.

Total contracts awarded in the province during the first seven months of the year are valued at more than $300,000,000. These figures are the negative.

The Doukhobors, who now live in the Kootenays, where they have been blamed for acts of terrorism over the years, favor the later district for settlement. "They have been the curse of the Kootenays for many years and the citizens of the Kootenay country are desperate to get rid of them," said Mr. Smith.

"We must call a halt on this high-pressure attempt to impose the Sons of Freedom on us. I call on all citizens of the Kamloops area to resist the relocation by organizing forceful means to prevent it."

The city council, tourist bureau, the Board of Trade and other civic organizations have protested to the government against the relocation plan.

Canadian Ships Together Again

WITH CANADIAN DESTROYERS OFF KOREA, Sept. 5 (AP)—The three destroyers Canada originally sent into United Nations service off Korea are back together again.

They are the Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan which first sailed from Esquimalt, B.C., in July, 1950. The Athabaskan has just returned to this theatre after a spell in Canada.

Two other destroyers, Nootka and Huron, have come and gone after splitting the three originals for periods at home.

The ships are still doing what they have been doing for months, patrolling the coast, sharing in bombardments, and doing odd jobs.

Lighthouse Keepers Hit By Drought; Aid on Way

Drought-hit lighthouse keepers will get a fresh supply of water in the next few days through the co-operation of the navy.

Thomas Morrison, Transport Department agent, said yesterday the navy craft Billow will leave Victoria today to pump water to stations on Trial Island, Portlock Point, Merry Island and Ballenas Island.

The Billow is a converted seiner with built-in water tanks. Mr. Morrison said the Trial Island lighthouse will likely be the first to be restocked with water.

The entire four-station operation is expected to take three or four days if the weather is good.

Calm weather is needed as the Billow has to tie in close to the rocks in order to get its hose-line to the water cisterns on the islands.

Lighthouse keepers generally draw their supply from rain collected in tanks, said Mr. Morrison, but the recent dry spell has depleted their supply.

Police said today that Eugene H. Gavigan, 39, who shot and killed his divorced wife and himself in Long Beach last night, had followed the terrified woman halfway around the world in a deadly game that lasted five years.

Detective Inspector C. O. Bennett disclosed that Hazel Gavigan, 40, had fled from California to Japan, back to the east coast and west again to Long Beach, Bennett said.

"Wherever she went, he followed her. He didn't want her back, but he wanted to make sure she didn't have dates with other men."

Mrs. Gavigan was watching television last night with a friend when Gavigan knocked on the door, then shot his wife above the heart and himself through the left shoulder and heart.

Gromyko Claims Japan Will Share Aggressive Power

Squash Russian Attempt To Invite Chinese Reds

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Andrei Gromyko of Russia declared today the proposed Japanese peace treaty "is clearing the path for Japanese participation in an aggressive military bloc in the Far East."

With this speech, however, Gromyko apparently had shot his bolt.

At the heated morning session he was quickly beaten down in his attempts to have Communist China invited and to stall adoption of the rules.

Those rules, adopted by 48 to 3, allow each delegation one hour to speak on the treaty.

Taking his hour shortly after 5 p.m., Gromyko launched his diatribe.

His cohorts from Poland and Czechoslovakia, who vainly backed him on the morning fight, were still to be heard from, but it was evident that the iron curtain countries had lost their chance to delay or disrupt the treaty signing set for Saturday.

Near the end of Gromyko's talk, Percy C. Spender of Australia, the acting president of the conference, interrupted the Russian and warned him he was making proposals.

Amendments are forbidden by the rules.

"No! I am making a statement in explanation of my position," Gromyko shot back.

Gromyko then finished his blistering attack, which actually included amendment proposals.

One point he raised was sharply aimed at a planned security pact between the U.S. and Japan which would provide for stationing U.S. troops there until Japan has an army of her own.

He asked for an amendment to the treaty which would call for withdrawal of all foreign troops within 90 days after the treaty comes into force.

Gromyko proposed:

1. Sakhalin should go to Russia.

2. The sovereignty of Japan, under the treaty, should extend to the Ryukyu Islands, which the treaty proposes should be administered by the U.S.

3. All armed forces to be withdrawn as soon as possible or within 90 days after signing the treaty.

4. A reparations conference for China, Indonesia, Burma and the Philippines.

5. Participation of Red China as a signatory nation.

6. Take all measures necessary to ensure all human rights including freedom of speech and worship.

7. Ban all military or semi-military organizations.

8. Prohibit Japan from joining a military alliance against any power that fought her in the Second World War.

9. The treaty is "not a treaty for peace but a treaty for the preparation of a new war in the Far East."

10. Limit Japan's armed forces to a 150,000-man army and a constabulary, a navy of 25,000 and 200 fighter planes, not more than 150 transport and utility planes and no more than 200 heavy and medium tanks.

11. No military training other than that necessary to maintain this force.

12. No atomic, bacteriological or other types of mass-warfare weapons.

13. Demilitarization of the Strait of Tsushima, between Japan and Korea.

Although Gromyko's attack was spirited, there seemed little doubt that the Russian was beaten.

City Boy Fatally Injured

A 3½-year-old boy was fatally injured last night while playing on the street near his Victoria home.

Dead is Joseph Lacey, son of Percy Officer and Mrs. A. G. Lacey, 4549 Clawthorne.

JOSEPH LACEY

P.O. Lacey is serving aboard H.M.C.S. Cayuga in Korean waters.

Young Lacey was playing on Burton Avenue, a block from his home, shortly after 7 p.m. when the tragedy struck. According to police he darted from the side of the road into the path of a car driven by George F. Rawlings, 29, 1606 Edgeware.

The boy was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by a neighbor, George Mowatt, and died at the hospital at approximately 8:45 p.m.

The body is being held at the hospital pending a coroner's inquest.

Among the boy's survivors are a younger brother, Rickey, and twins George and Charlene, aged seven.

It is not as yet known whether P.O. Lacey will be flown home from Korea for the funeral.

Acheson Voted Parley Chief

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5 (INS)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson was elected permanent president of the Japanese peace conference in San Francisco today.

The secretary received 43 votes against two cast for Percy C. Spender, Australian ambassador to the United States, and two for Sir Zafulla Khan, foreign minister of Pakistan.

U.K. Support Seen for Army

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Informed sources said today the government has decided to support creation of a unified European army with strong West German formations, originally advanced by Rene Pleven of France.

Times publisher Stuart Keate, a member of the delegation, then addressed the council, stating he was grateful for the opportunity to speak about the Colonist editorial.

"It is not often I become exercised over a Colonist editorial. In fact, it is not too often that I read them. However, as the saying goes, it was brought to my attention and here I am," said Mr. Keate.

The publisher said the title of The Colonist editorial, "A Conditional Gift," was misleading.

He then referred to a statement in the editorial to the effect that the provincial government is already on record through Hon. E. C. Carson, with the pledge that "an art gallery will be a part of B.C.'s new $2,000,000 museum when it is built in Victoria."

Mr. Keate said he checked this with Mr. Carson, who said, "Lord knows when that will ever come." He added that the minister said he knew of no commitment by the government.

In conclusion, the Times publisher said he wouldn't "bore" the council with the remainder of the Colonist editorial.

Mr. Keate urged the council to accept the offer because he felt Victoria was one of the potentially great cultural centres of Canada. He was surprised the arts centre had as many as 400 members, considering the "grocery store" type of accommodation now used.

"A progressive city like Victoria with more than a $6,000,000 budget should be able to spend $3,000 on cultural development," the publisher added.

"Would The Times like to underwrite $1,000? It is all right to give lip service, but..." said Ald. Skilling.

Mr. Keate replied that he thought his firm was community-minded and would meet its obligations.

WAITED FIVE DAYS

Off course and out of fuel, Bourassa said in his note, he landed at Wholida Lake and after waiting for five days began the overland trek through mud, rain and scattered bush. Reliance is about 200 air miles northwest of Wholida.

Berry, who found Eli, Lieut. Sheldon Coleman and LAC Joseph Farley after they had been lost for 30 days in 1936 in the North West Territories' barren lands, said he thinks Bourassa would have a better chance.

First indication that Bourassa, who is about 30, may have survived came yesterday when his abandoned plane was found with a note telling how he was forced down last May 18 far from the northland aerial paths and was striking out for Fort Reliance at the eastern end of Great Slave Lake.

City Accepts Offer of Spencer Home as Art Gallery

Miss Sara Spencer's offer to the city of her home at 1040 Moss Street for use as a civic arts centre and gallery was accepted yesterday by a committee of the whole city council.

The council is expected to confirm the move finally at Tuesday's regular meeting.

The motion to accept the finance committee's recommendation was approved by a 6-4 vote. Ald. Aubrey Kent, Ald. Robert MacMillan, Ald. W. J. Skilling and Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie voted in the negative.

Officials of the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria said last night a start will be made on the new project about October. The present centre at 823 Broughton Street will be continued until the end of September.

Under the plan the city will accept the property in trust for use and occupation by the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria, the city agreeing to maintain the grounds (no specific cost was stated in the recommendation) and the exterior of the house at a cost of $250 annually. Parks department officials estimated cost of ground maintenance at $2,100.

Council did not agree to the request that the city make an annual grant of not less than $3,000 to assist in operation of the gallery.

After two hours of spirited debate, during which time members of the Arts Centre were heard, the council finally wound up in a flurry of motions, amendments and amendments to amendments.

A suggestion by Acting Mayor Frank Mulliner that the vote be delayed until Tuesday was opposed by some aldermen, who said they would be subjected to more lobbying in the interval.

An amendment by Ald. William Pinfold that the city not accept the property but make a grant of $6,000 to the centre was not approved. An amendment to this amendment by Ald. MacMillan that Ald. Pinfold's idea be carried out without any reference to a set amount also was defeated.

J. Ronald Grant, the centre's solicitor, read to the council a brief urging the city to accept the gift in trust for the arts centre, maintain the outside of the building to the extent of $250 a year, take reasonable care of the garden and grant $3,000 to assist in operation.

MUCH FOR LITTLE

"The proposal... would mean that the city would acquire a valuable property, substantial art treasures and a major cultural centre for a relatively small contribution," said Mr. Grant.

Times publisher Stuart Keate, a member of the delegation, then addressed the council, stating he was grateful for the opportunity to speak about the Colonist editorial.

"It is not often I become exercised over a Colonist editorial. In fact, it is not too often that I read them. However, as the saying goes, it was brought to my attention and here I am," said Mr. Keate.

Mr. Keate replied that he thought his firm was community-minded and would meet its obligations.

Referring to the request for a

$3,000 grant, Mr. Grant said the centre was not asking the council to bind the city in perpetuity. The gallery might become self-sustaining, he said. Ald. Kent said the council's experience has been that such arrangements "snowball."

When certain aldermen suggested all municipalities should share in the cost, Mr. Grant said he agreed in principle but the fundamental responsibility rested with the city.

Ald. Dr. J. D. Hunter, Ald. Percy Seaborn and Ald. Millard Mooney spoke in favor of the finance committee's recommendation.

Mrs. A. S. Wyllie, Arts Centre president, referring to state-ments that the property be deeded to a board of trustees, stressed that it is Miss Spencer's wish that the city take over the property—G. A. A. Heben, a member of the delegation, said there is financial support in the offering for the centre if the city accepts the offer.

ALLABOARD

The Victoria song-writing team of Moore, Moore and Rogers hope to hear their B.C.-flavored melodies booming across the continent from here to New Orleans before they are much older.

Many other tunesmiths have nursed the same hope without the faintest chance of success. The road to fortune in the popular song business is littered with broken hopes like skeletons on the Golden Road to Samarcand.

But this may be the real thing. The local trio have sold two songs, and prospects look good for Moore.

There are two ways to get songs published. One way is to pay money to a petty racketeer who calls himself a music publisher. That way pays off in nothing but vanity, which soon wears thin when the victim learns he has been taken for a sucker.

The other way, the publisher pays you. If you're lucky, he pays you a great deal.

Senior member of the Moore-Moore-Rogers combo is Mrs. Ethel Moore, 67, former theatre pianist and daughter of a pioneer Victoria family. She makes up the music. Daughter Ellen and daughter Billie (Mrs. Bernie Rogers) make up the words.

Mrs. Moore has played the family organ by ear since she was five years old. Melodies run through her head. For years she improvised her own mood music to follow moving pictures.

"We always lived around the piano and had friends in," says lyricist Billie, a comely dark-eyed brunette. "It was always open house. We were singing and having fun, and one night we made up our own song."

Since then, about 30 songs, words and music, have been turned out casually at family musicbees.

Billie's husband, Bernie, qualifies as idea-man. There are days when Billie snatches up his lightest utterance and runs away with it, crying "There's an idea for a song."

The heavy chore of marketing fell on Billie, who has sent dozens of letters to publishers and eminent people in show business. Such big names as Jack Benny, Phil Harris and Bing Crosby have given encouragement and help.

Cowboy singer-Whit Carter heard one song, "Echo Trail," at the P.N.E., and recommended it to Southern Music Publishers, New York. Meanwhile, the song had been accepted for sheet music publication by B.M.I., Toronto. Southern Music is negotiating for U.S. rights. A third music publisher showed interest. Canadian Music Sales Corporation, Toronto, has two more Moore-Rogers songs under consideration.

"Whispering Waves," another Moore-Rogers composition, was accepted by Sharril, New Westminster, for sheet music publication, and by Aragon, Vancouver, for recordings. The record is played by Victoria's Hometowners, with Fred Usher singing.

The Moores and Rogers feel they have, for the first time, put over an all-Canadian popular song—and one with a B.C. flavor, at that.

"Most B.C. songs sound like hymns," Billie says.

Lyrics of "Whispering Waves" will not put the major poets to flight, but they are an acceptable chunk of boy-leaves-girl nostalgia, featuring pines beside the sea, names written in the sand, and waves which churlishly wash the names away. The tune is easy on the ear.

"Echo Trail" goes into details about the trees, the mountain, the canyon, and the roar of the river.

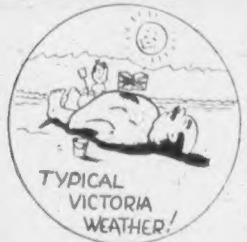

The lyric-writing sisters believe they are descended on their father's side from Thomas Moore, the Irish poet. Their grandfather's two brothers walked across the Rockies on foot, lived for three weeks on berries, and just escaped with their lives after Indians stole their horses and food.

He appeared before Magistrate A. I. Thomas in provincial court yesterday and was remanded to Friday. Bail was set at $3,000.

Lessard is alleged to have been the driver of a car which struck a telephone pole near the old Langford Speedway and caused the death of Irvin Oscar Isaacson, 16, and Elmer Rotaas, 18.

Isaacson died almost immediately.

Joseph's Hospital early the next day.

Lessard suffered a fractured jaw and other injuries.

Atom-Powered Aircraft Will Be Built for U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Atomic-powered flight today moved another step from the laboratory toward the factory stage with the award of a contract for development of the first airplane at the Consolidated-Vultee Corporation's East Worth, Tex., plant.

The bare announcement was a signal that theoretical work has advanced to the stage where experts are convinced they can have a plane with virtually unlimited range and altitude.

That feature is inherent in the whole idea of an atom-powered plane, along with the probability of tremendous speed and altitude.

Officials in close touch with the development work, however, stressed the belief that actual flight with the new power still is years away.

It was announced previously that the atomic power plant will be developed at the General Electric Company's gas turbine division at Lockland, Ohio.

Early planning toward atom-powered flight found its major obstacle in the weight of the nuclear plant and the heavy shielding to protect men and delicate instruments from atomic radiation.

Engineers now believe it is possible to construct an atomic engine and its protective shield.

One of the major problems is the approximate weight of the power plants and fuel supply of the new B-52 heavy bomber and the latest all-jet B-36.

Neither the air force nor any officially sponsored statement by a recognized scientist has attempted to give the maximum speed envisaged for the atom-powered airplane.

Opposition Leaders Urge Price Action

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP).—Government action to hold down the cost of living will be demanded by Opposition parties in the Commons when parliament meets next month.

This was emphasized today in statements by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader.

They were commenting on Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's radio broadcast last night on the cost of living. Speaking after the bureau of statistics had announced that the cost of living index in July had risen 1.3 points to a new high of 138.9, Mr. St. Laurent said Canada is not going to have direct price controls now.

Mr. Drew said Parliament will have an opportunity to vote on the question.

DEMAND ACTION

"Between now and the time that Parliament meets in October, everything possible should be done by all Canadians throughout the whole of Canada to impress upon members of Parliament that the people of Canada want immediate action, and vigorous action, to hold down the cost of living."

Mr. Coldwell said that a government which fails to act now "should forfeit the confidence of the people."

Mr. Coldwell called for the payment of subsidies to compensate farmers for rising costs of production and to lower food prices.

Mr. Low said the Prime Minister "certainly expects a great deal of the Canadian people when he thinks they can take action to control inflation."

Red Zone Police Crab Five Buses

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—Communist police seized five Berlin passenger buses en route to West Germany over the international highway today despite the fact their drivers paid the new Russian zone road tax, western police reported.

About 120 German passengers were released. Reason for the seizure was not known. This was the first incident of its kind since the Communists slapped on their road toll last Friday midnight.

Heretofore, if the driver of a bus or other motor vehicle paid his toll he was permitted to pass. The Communist tax collectors make bus lines pay 10 marks (about $2.40) for their first eight passengers and one mark for each additional passenger.

Correspondent Urges Troops Learn Customs

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (CP).—Bill Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent in Korea, suggested today that Canadian soldiers proceeding overseas ought to be educated on the geography, culture and customs of the countries to which they are posted.

Boss, addressing the Empire Club of Canada, said western troops serving in Korea had acquired a "nauseous" attitude which was reflected in their dealings with the Koreans.

He said the pattern had been set by other countries' troops but that apart from two battalions, the Canadians were tending also to conform to it.

The 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd Regiment, he said, were less guilty of the attitude than other Canadians there. But generally, the Canadians were more sympathetic than others.

GLASGOW, Scotland (CP).—Three youths were each fined £4 for placing an 11-year-old boy "in a state of bodily fear and alarm." The boy said he was suspended, head-down by the ankles over a bridge as a train was passing below.

Indirect Pressure Shifting Labor

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP).—Government policy of using indirect pressure to shift labor into defense industry from non-defense trades is showing effects, today's fortnightly review of the labor department indicated.

The report showed that layoffs and short-time work in consumer goods industries, which first developed in May, are enlarging, while at the same time defense industries are picking up workers.

The overall totals showed that unemployment in Canada generally had shrunk to 130,000 as of Aug. 2, representing almost complete employment of the labor force of more than 3,000,000. It was 5,300 less than at July 19 and 27,300 less than a year earlier.

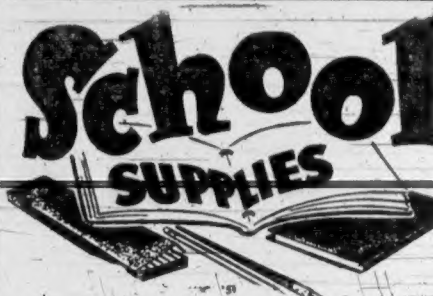

Of the trend, the department said:

"On the one hand, some industries continued to expand output and employment in response to the gradual industrialization of the country and the defense needs of the western democracies.

"On the other hand, layoffs and short-time work in the consumer goods industry... have become more widespread."

Oddities

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 5 (AP).—Nose trouble today prevented city officials from determining the source of the "south side's" B-2 Stink—an overwhelming odor that has plagued the district for several summers.

Health commissioner Dr. Fred Long and city sanitarian Louis W. Pickles went today to try to find the source.

The two gave up because Dr. Long had a cold and couldn't smell anything. Pickles said his boy never made his nose useless.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP).—At 9.50 a.m. Monday two patrolmen spotted Luther Kelly on his knees shooting dice. They hauled him off to the station and he put up $5.

At 11.32 a.m. Kelly was caught, dice in hand, on his knees, by the patrolmen at the same intersection. Again he was taken to the station. Again he posted $5.

At 3.45 p.m. same intersection, same policemen, same Kelly, same dice, same charge, same collateral.

The blotter doesn't show whether Kelly made his point but apparently the police made theirs—Kelly hasn't been seen on his knees at the intersection since.

Russia's Grandstand Play

TO THE Japanese Peace Conference at San Francisco made short work yesterday of Russia's grandstand play on behalf of Red China. Chinese Communists, who did not come into power until after Japan had been defeated and who had small if indeed any part in that defeat, should be summoned to the conference, argued Andrei Gromyko, chief Russian delegate, supported by Polish and Czechoslovakian delegates. For three hours in the debate which followed this opening move by Mr. Gromyko the delegates would have none of it. Five polls turned back the Russian proposal, which was defeated decisively when the conference adopted the rules of procedure suggested to it by Great Britain and the United States. The main debate on the treaty will follow, and at its end the peace treaty with Japan will be duly signed, without help from the Kremlin or its satellites.

As a reply to President Truman, who on the previous evening had challenged the Communist bloc to prove a desire for peace by their actions in world councils, Mr. Gromyko's manoeuvre falls considerably short of a peace demonstration. Indeed, as much as two weeks ago one could read the reported utterance of Red spokesmen in East which Mr. Gromyko so faithfully reproduced yesterday. That was no demonstration towards peace. It was clear and unmistakable evidence of the continuing intention of Russia to barter this and every other international effort towards the rehabilitation of the peace of the world. The same attempted obstruction will be encountered from here until the end of the conference without doubt.

Very differently would a genuine desire by Russia for peace have manifested itself at the conference. If there are faults in the treaty, and no doubt there will be some, they could be patiently argued out. If there were just reason for the presence of Chinese spokesmen at the hearings that could have been presented, and the delegates would have listened. What came instead was a cold, unyielding demand that Red China alone be given the preference and counted in first. Why? No doubt because it was known in advance by Russia that this would be refused, and the conference thereupon discounted as "illegal" in Communist propaganda and counter moves. In the end, however, President Truman's plain question stands before the people of the world. Those who are for a genuine peace can declare themselves best by their actions now.

Ottawa's Old Refrain

PRIME MINISTER ST. LAURENT'S address to Canadians this week on the cost of living (on the day when the index for July was announced at one decimal point short of 190) was disappointing and misleading. It was disappointing because it showed no willingness yet on the part of the national government to accept its own responsibility for the control of inflation; misleading because the prime minister tried to attribute the steady rise in prices of necessities to a cause only partially to blame now, and which scarcely existed a year ago. The impression Mr. St. Laurent created was that the need for defensive rearmament thrust upon Canada was responsible for all this, as if nothing had happened before the war in Korea started. If one were to swallow that one would have to ignore the fact that prior to June, 1950, the cost-of-living index had been climbing rapidly month by month in years when Canada's expenditure for defense was negligible. Indeed the prime minister's reference to rearmament as the cause of high commodity prices becomes ominous when it is realized that Canadian industry has hardly begun to feel the impact of the defense program. When it does, will prices then reach the stratosphere?

As a means of "controlling" inflation all Mr. St. Laurent had to suggest, as others of his cabinet have done with monotonous regularity for years, was that Canadians should produce more at less cost, spend less, save more, and postpone buying things they can do without. In this he is akin somewhat to Mr. Nehru pleading with the world to stop making wars. Right now attempts to cure inflation by appeals to individuals have about as much hope of success as the efforts of a one-armed man to poke a pound of melted butter down a wildcat's throat with a red-hot needle. It is elementary that inflation could be halted if everyone did as the government asks, but to leave this to individual choice is to disregard human nature.

Let's put away the one-string fiddle, and come down to earth on this inflation business. Let's stop telling people who haven't seen a roast of beef in months to put off buying things they "can do without." In short, let's have some action instead of buck-passing from the government put in office to keep the country on the rails. It is confirmed officially that the cost of living in Canada is higher now than in the United States, and if that doesn't convey anything to Mr. St. Laurent and his economic advisers it certainly should.

Rebuked by Its Own Counsellor

IT WAS no surprise when Genet Worthington's patience gave out and he said bluntly that Canada should either get a move on with its civil defense preparations or else drop its program altogether. The national civil defense co-ordinator has been working under wraps ever since he came back from Britain early last year all primed to launch a full-scale scheme for the protection of civilians in emergency. His reward then, from the men who sent him there, was to have cold water poured on his zeal.

Canada cannot afford, of course, to drop its home defense program, dilatory though this has been to date. No one knows this better than General Worthington, and it is the measure of his disappointment that he should have been impelled to speak out so sharply against the administration which gave him the job of blue-printing civil defense on a national scale. The federal government is now in the position of having been rebuked by its own chief adviser on this subject.

All that the government seems to be able to offer in rebuttal, through the minister in charge, Mr. Paul Martin, is that it is well on the way to fulfill its objective of having 400 people trained in civil defense measures by the end of this year. Four hundred people—out of a population of some 14,000,000! And for at least 12 months now civil defense has been ostensibly a basic part of the national rearmament picture.

As a result of the slow, timid, hesitant and unequal pace of the civil defense program most Canadians have concluded there is little, if any, preparation against possible enemy air attack, and that the government itself does not really believe there is any such need. This concept is a denial of the whole military situation, as well as of expansion of the armed forces and the huge bill of costs looming for general rearmament. Only an administration complacent beyond words could reconcile such an anomaly.

BUTTE LAKE

Sir,—Is the adjournment of the discussions re Butte Lake dam a device to give the Power Commission a chance to do a little more destruction on the spot under the excuse that they are making "tests," and so get another wedge in, with the idea that having got so far they might as well be allowed to completely ruin property belonging to the people? When are the people going to put a stop to this over-riding on their rights?

G. F. BEALE.

TOO SLOW, TOO FAST

Sir,—On one of my frequent visits to your beautiful city I had occasion to drive up the Malahat, and I must point out just one fly in the ointment, namely the cars which drive at the ridiculously low speed of 10 miles per hour thus holding up all other traffic on the beautiful Malahat Drive.

May a visitor make a suggestion? To have a traffic regulation so that we do not feel we are still in the horse and buggy days on the Malahat highway.

It is almost as bad in my own country where they drive at 90 miles an hour, and thus go to the other extreme.

ROBT. JACKSON.

1609 Rockland Avenue, Victoria, B.C.

ARTS CENTRE

Sir,—At long last it seems that an Arts Centre worthy of Victoria may really materialize; with the gift of the Spencer property the city can hardly refuse to accept the responsibility in the matter. And quite apart from the use of the building as an Arts Centre there is another aspect of the property that should be considered, the land.

In these days when many people have to live in apartments or small houses there is a growing need for open spaces where they can relax in the open air and sunshine without having to go far from home. In fact for the welfare of the community it is a very necessary thing. As an instance any one familiar with Victory Square cannot but be struck by the number of people who benefit by its restfulness; old or crippled people, a mother with small children, business girls who during the summer take their lunch there at midday, a peaceful oasis in the city.

As I am in hospital I am unable to satisfy my curiosity as to the possibilities of the Spencer property in this way but am sure that it could be made to fill the same need with very little expense. There would be no need for "frills" such as ornamental flower beds, just comfortable seats and shade trees.

UNEXPECTED MESSENGER OF PEACE

For Posterity

NEW YORK (NANA)—Scientists are about to seal America's two most precious historical documents in jewel-like, helium-filled glass enclosures to protect them from the ravages of time and the elements for as long as man can foresee.

The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution will be handled by human hands for the last time on September 17, when they will be enclosed at formal sealing ceremonies in Washington. President Truman, who is scheduled to participate in the Constitution Day program, probably will be the last to touch the parchments.

The final sealing will climax a program of preservation that has confronted presidents and their advisers almost since these priceless documents were penned in Philadelphia. Though the Declaration and the Constitution have been protected carefully in recent years, earlier times found them exposed to the hazards of war, fire, and weather. In fact, some officials of the Library of Congress regard their survival as miraculous in the face of the casual treatment by the founding fathers.

Future generations for whom the parchments are being preserved probably will never be aware of the vast amount of research and engineering ability expended to assure complete protection of the documents. The glass and bronze enclosures are works of expert craftsmen, engineered as precisely as delicate instruments.

Each sheet of the documents will be protected completely from the outside atmosphere by a metal-to-glass bond running around the edges of the two pieces of glass forming the upper and lower sides of the enclosure. This special glass unit, which the National Bureau of Standards approved for the project, was developed by engineers at a cost of more than $1,000,000 over a period of 16 years.

Scientists conducted hundreds of tests before discovering the alloy used in the sandwichlike unit of glass. Actual cost of the six glass and bronze cases in which the five pages of the Constitution and the single page of the Declaration will be sealed runs into thousands of dollars. Since the work on the project began actually two years ago, the glass company itself contributed about $15,000 in research and engineering talent, processing and materials to the government as public service.

In their new setting, the single sheet of the Declaration and each of the five leaves of the Constitution will be sealed in an airtight envelope consisting of two panes of color-clear tempered plate glass, bonded together by metal. The documents will rest on special cellulose backing paper in an atmosphere of pure helium of precisely controlled relative humidity. Special lights and filters will protect the parchments against the destructive light rays.

Helium will be used instead of air because it is free of such components of the atmosphere as oxygen, which causes deterioration. As a further precaution, the helium will be maintained at between 25 and 35 per cent relative humidity, at room temperature. High humidity leads to deterioration of parchment, while dry atmosphere causes dehydration, brittleness and cracking.

Though the Constitution is in good condition, the ink on the Declaration has been fading slowly for more than 100 years, and many signatures are so dim they require magnification to identify the authors.

The history of the document explains its condition. One historian related that it was filed in the office of the secretary of the Continental Congress, where, like many other parchments of the day, it was rolled up and stored until it had to be brought out for a delegate to sign.

The Declaration probably suffered its greatest damage from being dampened at one time so that press copies could be made of it. This procedure removed much original ink.

Reporting From Ottawa

THERE are times when even the most patient man loses his temper. Such an occasion presented itself to Maj. Gen. F. F. Worthington the other day and "Fighting Frank" is not the most patient of men.

They were strong words he used, telling Canada to do something about civil defense or kill it. Do one thing or the other, he said—don't just sit on it.

For a government official to offer such definite advice on a matter of policy is unusual. Washington officials often speak out—and indeed, in this case Worthington was merely echoing the words of one of them, Milard Caldwell, the U.S. civil defense administrator. But Canadian civil servants, steeped in the British tradition, rarely make public statements which reflect on the elected rulers of the country.

However, when a reporter asked Worthington why Canada was making slow progress in preparing for civil defense, he replied: "The trouble lies behind you."

The reporter turned and looked out the window to the parliament building in the distance.

Worthington's dissatisfaction with progress in civil defense preparations has been growing for a long time. A year ago—which was then two years after his appointment as federal co-ordinator of civil defense—the general was in sharp disagreement with Defense Minister Claxton on the urgency of the problem and what should be done.

At that time Worthington had only a small staff. Inadequate for the magnitude of the task. Working against parliamentary and public lethargy, he managed to get more men and make a start on many phases of civil defense activity.

A few months ago responsibility for the federal role in civil defense was transferred from the Department of National Defense to the Department of National Health and Welfare. Worthington's new boss, Health and Welfare Minister Martin, was more in agreement with the general's views, and by comparison the civil defense program has been going like a house afire in recent weeks.

But only by comparison. Worthington's main difficulty, as he has stated in still public and parliamentary apathy. Canada still has the "it can't happen here" attitude on the subject of enemy attack—a sense of false security born of distance from the fields of battle of recent wars, generations of peace with the United States, and a feeling of protection in the shadow of American military might.

One guesses that the general, trying to get authority for a far more intense civil defense effort, laid his case before selected members of parliament in private, off the record chats. At any rate, several M.P.'s including his fellow major-general, G. R. Pearkes, the Progressive Conservative military critic, from time to time have raised questions in parliament about the pace of civil defense preparations.

But the M.P.'s voices have been few and weak. The government's huge Liberal majority didn't take up the refrain. Nor has there been any noticeable pressure from the public.

True, under Health Minister Martin progress has been faster. But Canada is still far from being prepared for Russian atomic attacks, and "Worthy" knows this better than anyone else. That's why he blew his top the other day when after all may not be a bad thing if it causes politicians to think less about winning elections, and more about what may be around to vote in elections after an A-bomb attack.

Recruiting and the Jobless

(From The Ottawa Citizen)

THE public will no doubt welcome the assurances given by Mr. Gregg, the minister of labor, that employees of the Unemployment Insurance Commission are not trying to persuade unemployed men to join the armed forces. Allegations had been made by the Oshawa and District Labor Council that such persuasion has been attempted. It would, indeed, be a flagrant injustice if this were so.

Outside of conscription, there should be no pressure on special groups of young men, whether unemployed or working, to join the armed forces. Such pressure should not come from either government or private agencies. At the moment, the issue may seem academic. But as the tempo of Canada's defense effort rises, and if the volunteer system fails to produce the number of recruits needed by the armed forces, the issue may become real.

Pressure should only be applied, if it must be, on a conscription basis, in order to ensure equality of sacrifice. The fact that a man is unemployed should not in itself be a reason for demanding that he join the armed forces, for to a degree, military service would then become a matter of luck. Those lucky enough to have jobs would be exempt, while those unfortunate enough to be unemployed—even temporarily—would find themselves under pressure to do something they did not wish to do. Such pressure would constitute an assault on personal liberty.

To be fair, any pressure to join the armed forces must be universally applied. Canada is not yet in a position where such measures are necessary, and according to the minister of defense, Mr. Claxton, recruiting results in the past 12 months have been so favorable that barring a war they may not become necessary at all. But if they do, they should not be on a partial basis. That is why Mr. Gregg's assurances are so welcome.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

By means of its air conditioner, an eastern bank circulates a piney odor through its counting rooms. But what's the matter with money, and its fresh, miffy smell?

None of the behavior ethics so far as we know has looked into this strange human tendency to fight at the drop of the word "fruce."

A suspicion breaks into print that Peron of Argentina may be the richest man in the world. Which just goes to show what a wife who is a good manager can do.

BETTER MOUSETRAP

David Brown, of Brighton, England, thinks he has found a better mousetrap, but there is nobody beating a path to his door. He brought a six-foot box constrictor from South America to roam around his kitchen and keep the mice away. Mr. Brown says it works perfectly. He is a bachelor.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK
While Visiting Britain

A ROUND England you will notice a greater percentage of people wearing modern hearing aids than you do in Canada or the States. A great many Britons had their hearing damaged by explosions during the bombing and rocketing of Britain in the war. But in addition, national health regulations make it possible for people of however restricted means to have these fairly expensive instruments.

For instance, the other morning I counted seven hearing aids in the short journey by tube, with two short walks, between my hotel and Canada House. The first was on the door-pusher of my hotel; second on a well-dressed businessman walking by; third on a young girl in overalls and the uniform of the transportation company down in the tube; fourth on an elderly woman; fifth, a teenage boy in the tube tram; sixth on the man who took my ticket at the top of the tube escalator; and seventh another passerby outside Canada House. You never see that many in an ordinary week in a Canadian city.

Like eyeglasses, they are free of charge, part of the national health scheme in semi-socialist Britain. Rich and poor are both eligible for these and almost every other mechanical correction for defects of the sensory organs. It is a fundamental project, not unlike the American declaration of independence which guarantees the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, except that the British throw in the necessary tools, to wit spectacles and hearing aids, so that you can do your pursuing with the aid of all your faculties.

Furry Festival

IN this festival year virtually every organization in Britain seems to be holding some kind of festival, one of the latest of them being a Festival of Cats which was held recently at the Royal Horticultural Hall in London. This show, heralded by a broadcast in a B.B.C. program in which Kathleen Williams and a Danish cat fancier, Sketty Hirkfeldt, talked about the feline wonders to be seen, was run by a pretty panel of officials, including such appropriately named ladies as Miss Kitty Wilson and Mrs. A. H. Cattermole. The show took place on a hot, sunny day and a number of the exhibits took the strongest objection to it, particularly the Siamese, who yowled the cat equivalent of "Let me OUT of this!" in endless complaint.

This festival was much more than a mere show of live cats, even though it held half a dozen samples of the rare Burmese (chocolate-brown) exquisites with yellow-green eyes who have only recently been seen in Britain) and two Siamese kittens with red points, in succession to the better-known seal, chocolate and blue pointed varieties. There was every known kind of cat from the lion-cub-like Abyssinians to the ordinary pussies without pedigree who were merely labeled "Household Pets."

What made the festival unusual was the section devoted to cats through the ages. Here, in all its horrid finality, was a mummified cat which reached Britain from Egypt in the 1890's. Thousands had been found in a far cemetery where they had lain undisturbed for 3,000 years, for the cat was once a sacred animal in Egypt. They had been shipped ignominiously as fertilizer at £1 a ton. This ancient beast in its funeral wrappings lay as a reminder of its past glories, flanked by several superb statuettes of Egyptian cats.

Here, too, was the skeleton of a cat discovered when the Roman villa at Lullingstone in Kent was excavated, and the remains of another cat found in the Tower of London. There was a cat painted on a Greek vase found in Italy in 400 B.C., but the first mention of cats in Britain was in the Diamond code enacted by Prince Hywel in 936. This laid down that if a cat were killed or stolen its worth could be assessed by holding it up by its tail with its head just touching the floor, and then pouring wheat round it till the wheat covered the tail tip. The worth of the wheat was the worth of such a cat, but an ordinary cat was valued at a mere twopenny and a good mouser at fourpence. There were photographs and pictures of cats throughout the ages from many different countries, china models, carved wooden cats for use as pencil-boxes, Toby jugs in the shape of cats and books on cats in bewildering array. These included an enchanting volume of 1823 called "Dame Wiggins" of Lee and her Seven Wonder Cats," written principally by a lady of ninety.

With the Classics

"Still to Be Neat . . ."

Still to be neat, still to be drest, As you were going to a feast; Still to be powder'd, still perfume'd; Lady, it is to be presum'd, Though acts hid causes are not found, All is not sweet, all is not sound. Give me a look; give me a face That makes simplicity a grace; Robes loosely flowing, hair as free; Such sweet neglect more takes me Than all the adulteries of art; They strike mine eyes, but not my heart.

Catalogues Hint Prices Expected to Be Steady

If catalogues are anything to judge by, prices will remain fairly level for a few months at least.
Mail order catalogue prices must be decided with an eye to future price rises or drops, and a wrong guess is going to cost the mail order houses money.
In a survey of price comparisons in recent catalogues, The Financial Post found that in most cases the goods compared were nearly identical. In some cases closely similar goods had apparently been substituted for certain items in the earlier catalogue.
Increased prices of the past six months are reflected in the catalogues. Even the cost of living has gone up, according to the books — the top price for a set of engagement and wedding rings has gone up from $1,000 to $1,200.

Albert Head and gun drill in the camps.

The contents are devoted to general interest items relating to research, training and communications.

Army Replaces Fishermen In Puck Loop

Fishermen's Co-op, last year's league champions, have withdrawn from the Commercial Hockey League, secretary Laurie Givnan announced last night. Their franchise will be filled by an army team.

The league will retain its six-team setup with Douglas Tire, Navy, Civil Service, Capital and a yet unspecified team holding the other franchises. The unsponsored club will replace last season's Gladwell Motors.

Givnan asks that anyone wishing to referee this year make application to him by letter at 1131 Grant Street.

Midwestweights Gene Holston and Harold Green have signed for a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden, Sept. 13.

Denis Compton, English cricket idol, will marry Valerie Platt, 23, in Durban, South Africa, next month.

Stan Heath, former Green Bay and Hamilton quarterback, will join Calgary Stampeder as a replacement for Keith Spaldy, who is out with a broken finger.

Buddy Loftis, 21-year-old Edmonton professional, won the Alberta open golf title by a one-stroke margin over Frank Willey of Edmonton.

Detroit will offer pitcher Hal Newhouse a $14-year contract next season until he can demonstrate that he can pitch regularly again.

Ottawa Senators Swept By Huge Reorganization

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP).—Ottawa Senators, building for the new Quebec Senior Hockey League season, today announced acquisition of 14 players in the most sweeping reorganization in top-flight Ottawa hockey in 40 years.

Old-time hockey followers said the biggest previous shuffle came in 1908-09, when the famous Silver Seven was replaced by Ottawa Senators in the National Hockey League. Then Senators dropped from the scene in 1919.

Most members of last year's also-ran team will get a chance to try out again. But they will be against a classy array of stars, headed by Leo Gravelle of Ashter, Que., speedy forward purchased outright from the N.H.L.'s Detroit Red Wings.

The purchase of Gravelle alone is reported to have cost Senators around $10,000.

The deals were announced by club owner Tommy Gorman and reflected a major bid to regain the form of 1949-50 when the Senators won the Allan Cup. They play now in the major series leading to the Alexander Cup.

Gorman said Bill Durnan, former Montreal Canadiens goalie, has been signed to a new contract as coach.

Other new men:

Jackie Giesbrecht, Pembroke, Ont., right winger who started here four years ago and racked up 82 points with Denver in the now-defunct United States Hockey League last winter.

Goalie Hudson, big Ottawa defenseman who captained last year's Quebec Citadelles, Memorial Cup semi-finalists.

Ian (Fritz) Fraser of Orillia, Ont., a tough, hard-hitting defenseman.

Edgar Blondin, centre with last year's Ottawa army team in the Eastern Canada League, and George Robinson, Winnipeg forward with the R.C.A.F. Club in the same circuit, also were added.

Jimmy Mattson, goalie, last year with Brandon Junior Wheat Kings, will understudy Bill (Legs) Fraser.

Arrangements are also being made to get Hugh Campbell, a Halifax forward who formerly played with the R.C.A.F. in the E.C.H.L., some of last year's Senators may go to Halifax in the deal.

Of last year's club, defenseman Ray Trainor and forward Lude Check are retiring and centre Nils Tremblay has been traded to Sherbrooke, Que.

Wins C.N.E. Swim

VIVIAN KING

Twenty-year-old Winnipeg swimmer, Miss King, led all the way to win three-mile world championship women's swim at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition yesterday in one hour, 23 minutes. She won first prize of $1,400 and $350 in lap-prize. Mrs. Irene Barr van Fleet of Toronto was second and Lies Pitt of Montreal third.

Arrangements are also being made to get Hugh Campbell, a Halifax forward who formerly played with the R.C.A.F. in the E.C.H.L., some of last year's Senators may go to Halifax in the deal.

Of last year's club, defenseman Ray Trainor and forward Lude Check are retiring and centre Nils Tremblay has been traded to Sherbrooke, Que.

Druggists Win

Barry Jenner hurled Druggists to a 3-2 triumph over Combines in the first game of a best-of-three series for the Lower Island juvenile baseball title at MacDonald Park last night.

Second game will be played tomorrow at 6 p.m. on the same diamond.

Archie Moore knocked out Embrel Davidson, 310-pound protégé of Joe Louis, in 2:40 of the first round at Detroit last night.

Two Victorians Survive Second Round at Jasper

Only two Victorians survived second-round play in the 22nd annual Totem Pole Golf Tournament at Jasper yesterday.

Mrs. Margaret Todd, women's medalist, scored the most convincing victory, defeating Mrs. S. Thompson of Vancouver, 8 and 7. Accompanying her into the semi-finals are Mrs. J. B. Street, Saskatoon, and Mrs. F. Dunn, Seattle.

Gordon Verley, twice a runner-up, was the lone Victorian to reach the men's quarter-finals. He advanced with a 5 and 4 victory over A. O'Donnel of Victoria. Victorians eliminated were: J. M. Potts of Colwood, who bowed to medalist Ralph Whaley of Seattle; 2 and 1; and Dr. George Bigelow of the Victoria Golf Club who was ousted by N. Wilkinson of Edmonton by a similar score.

Others reaching the quarter-finals were: former champion E. Green of Seattle, H. C. Orfitt of Fort Wayne, Texas, and P. Bentley, J. W. Sharp and H. C. Lyle, all of Vancouver.

Toronto Girls Beat Mortons

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (CP).—Toronto Ace Queens tonight took a one-game lead in the Canadian women's senior softball best-of-three finals by beating Edmonton Mortons 4-3 at the Canadian National Exhibition. The series continues tomorrow night.

Tonight's loss was the first of the season for Mortons, who had previously won 32 league and playoff games and one exhibition game.

Aerodynamically speaking—

safe flight is assured by RCAF airframe technicians

It's not the engine—it's the wings that lift a plane.

At 600 miles an hour, air flows over wing and control surfaces with tremendous force. A broken surface would cause a whirlpool—break the airflow—destroy the lift—make flight impossible.

That's why all RCAF planes are daily inspected, rigged and trimmed by skilled Airframe Technicians...wings...flaps...slats...ailerons...elevators...trailer...door brakes...landing gear...

Whether it's an F-86 Sabre fighter or a big North Star, every RCAF plane must have an official okay from the Airframe Technician before it may take off—officially okayed for safe flight, from nose to tail.

To be eligible, you must...be between 17 and 40...be physically fit...have Grade 8 education or better

These skilled trades are open:

Relieve HAY FEVER

Hay Fever doesn't plague you with its annoying, itching irritation of eyes and nose. Get relief with Templeton's RAZ-MAH as did Mrs. Weber Brannstrom, Dunsmuir, Ont.

Since childhood, she suffered from Hay Fever. The older she got, the more she suffered. Then her druggist recommended RAZ-MAH.

The very first night I took RAZ-MAH, Mrs. Brannstrom writes, "I slept comfortably. Where I yawned, my eyes and nose were dry. I haven't been troubled since."

Don't suffer a day longer than you have to. For quick, safe relief from Hay Fever, take RAZ-MAH. Used by thousands. 60c, $1.35 at druggists.

Cash From Sale Urged for Nursing Home

The $150,000 received by the city from the recent sale of Pandora Avenue properties to Woodward Stores Ltd. should be used to help build the proposed new Victoria Nursing Home on Gorge Road, Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie said yesterday.

The alderman, a member of the nursing home society's board of directors, said the $150,000 represents just about the amount the city has been asked to contribute towards the project. The federal and provincial governments, she said, are going to donate one-third each.

BENEFIT COMMUNITY

"This would benefit the whole community. There is a great need for more nursing home accommodation," said Ald. Christie.

She explained that the new home would accommodate persons who don't need hospital care but are not quite able to care for themselves. It would

Jordan Princess Seeks Divorce

TEL AVIV, Israel, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Jerusalem Post said today the Crown Princess of Jordan has started divorce action against her husband.

Quoting "reliable diplomatic circles," the newspaper said: "It will be recalled that in May of this year the Emir (Tallal) in the throes of a mental disturbance rushed to the maternity ward of Amman Hospital and attempted to stab his wife, who was then expecting a baby."

The Post carried this story last May, claiming that Tallal had shot and wounded Brig. John Bagot Glubb Pasha, British head of Jordan's Arab Legion, the night before he made the alleged attempt on his wife.

115, Victoria, has written to the city suggesting the $150,000 be given for maintenance and upkeep of the proposed arts centre. The city also should make a grant for renovation of Prince Robert House, and another grant to the town planning commission for hiring of qualified town planning consultants, he said.

Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The subject is seated in a chair and views the screen through a video camera. The screen displays a target (a red dot) and a starting point (a green dot). The subject's hand is positioned at the starting point. The distance between the starting point and the target is 10 cm. The subject is instructed to move the hand to the target as quickly and accurately as possible. The video camera records the hand's position and the time taken to reach the target. The data is then used to calculate the subject's movement time and accuracy.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

2. The second step is to gather information. This includes looking at the data, talking to the people involved, and researching the problem.

3. The third step is to analyze the information. This involves looking for patterns, identifying the root cause, and determining the scope of the problem.

4. The fourth step is to develop a solution. This involves brainstorming ideas, evaluating the options, and choosing the best one.

5. The fifth step is to implement the solution. This involves putting the plan into action, monitoring the progress, and making adjustments as needed.

6. The sixth step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the actual outcomes with the expected ones, identifying any gaps, and learning from the experience.

7. The seventh step is to communicate the findings. This involves sharing the results with the relevant stakeholders, providing feedback, and documenting the process.

8. The eighth step is to follow up. This involves checking back on the problem to ensure that it has been resolved and that the solution is working.

9. The ninth step is to review the process. This involves reflecting on the entire process, identifying any areas for improvement, and making changes for the future.

10. The tenth step is to celebrate the success. This involves acknowledging the team's efforts, rewarding their achievements, and sharing the success with others.

Acute Lack of Leaders in District Hampering Scout, Cub Movement

A critical shortage of Scout leaders is severely hampering the Boy Scout and Wolf Cub movement in Victoria district. Another 100 men and women are needed to act as leaders in the district. Scout membership can be increased according to district.

Polio Closes Several Schools In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, Sept. 5 (CP). - Schools in several Nova Scotia centres failed to open on schedule today because of a ban enforced to check further polio outbreaks. Provincial health officials hoped the disease had reached its peak. Schools remained closed in Halifax, City and County, Lunenburg, Amherst, Chester, Mahone Bay, Parrishboro, Stewiack, Truro and Bridgewater. Admittance to hospital of polio victims dropped below normal yesterday for the second successive day and officials hoped the cooler weather had slowed its progress. Some 130 persons are under treatment here. About 50 have been discharged and there have been seven deaths. Halifax City and County banned children from public buildings and other centres have followed suit.

Casualty List Names Three

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP). - The army today issued its 47th casualty list of the Korean war, reporting one man wounded in action and one officer and one man injured in action. The list was the first in which the army used the expression, "injured in action." Previously such casualties were classified as "battle casualties," but this was found confusing. The latest list brought to 236 the number of casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 58 dead, 158 wounded, 19 injured in action and one missing. WOUNDED IN ACTION: Humphrey, Frank Vincent, Pte.; R.C.I.C.; Mrs. Violet Jean Humphrey (wife), R.R. No. 4, Bothwell, Ont. # Culbertson on Bridge

In yesterday's column we discussed the theory and practice of business deals, with special reference to match-point play. Here is another hand from the open pairs of the recent national tournament in Washington, D.C.—a hand which raises the issue of a double vs. a bid.

North-South vulnerable.

WEST: ♠ K 4 3, ♥ K 5 5, ♦ K 6 4 3 2, ♣ 9 7.

EAST: ♠ A 10 8 5, ♥ A J 7 3, ♦ A 9 8, ♣ Q 8 6 3.

SOUTH: ♠ A 9 7 6, ♥ K 2, ♦ Q 10 7 5, ♣ K J 5.

This was the bidding at several tables:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1S	Dbl
2S	3H	Pass	Pass

Inspired play by the declarer could have fulfilled the three-heart contract, but in most cases the result was a one or two-trick penalty. Even the declarer who made three hearts, scoring 140 points, was not as "happy" as he would have been if he had doubled the opposing two spades.

In a situation of this sort the respective vulnerability is of course a paramount issue, and with the vulnerability what it was, it is this writer's opinion that East should have doubled two spades instead of taking the aggressive course of bidding three hearts. East's reasoning, undoubtedly, was that his partner's takeout double of a spade showed good support for the other major suit, and this was a sound conclusion as far as it went. Observe, however, that West really had that good support for hearts and yet that the highest potential profit for East-West was in the defensive position.

The salient feature of the situation was, from the East point of view, that East had (a) a far better general "hand" than West could have expected; (b) a substantial strength in spades; (c) a singleton diamond which might be valuable on defense; and finally (d) that a one-trick penalty, giving East-West 200 points, would be better than any part-score they could make. If they could make game, the two-spade contract could probably be defeated 500 points.

Uncle Wiggily Story

Buster Longears, who was Uncle Wiggily's Rabbit Scout boy was hopping through the woods as fast as he could hop. Behind him he heard the screams of Mr. and Mrs. Eagle and the three little eagles.

"I don't believe they can catch me," said Buster to himself. "The trees in this wood are heavy and thick. It will not be easy, for even Mr. Eagle, to make a beak dive down through the trees at me and catch me in his claws. Nor for Mrs. Eagle, either. And I guess the three eaglets are too small to fly after me."

Buster, who held Bunty's doll, Priscilla, in one paw, and his water-molasses pistol in another paw, was hopping fast. He wondered if there was any more molasses left in the pistol.

"I might have to use it again to stick shift the eyes of Mr. or Mrs. Eagle if they fly after me," thought Buster. "There are no trees near the place where we landed the sailing boat on the shore of Frog Pond. It would be easy for an eagle to beak dive at me there. I'll see if my pistol has any molasses left."

As he hopped, Buster aimed his pistol at an old stump and pulled the trigger. Out shot a stream of molasses.

"I can still stick up eagles' eyes," said Buster to himself. "But maybe I won't need to do that. I hope I can find my way back to the boat and my father, Bosun, Bunty and the others."

Buster hopped along the path. Being a Rabbit Scout he could find his way quite well among the trees. Behind him Buster heard Mrs. Eagle scream: "Why don't you chase after that rabbit boy, Eggie?"

"Because I can't see. My eyes are stuck with molasses," said Mr. Eagle. "Why don't you go, my dear?"

"I can't fly to chase that bird rabbit because I don't want to leave our little eagles," screamed the mother eagle. "You can't see only for a little while and our eaglets are too small to fight for themselves. I must stay and look after them."

"All right. Let that rabbit boy go with what he calls Bunty's doll," said Mr. Eagle. "As long as he isn't a fish and as long as the doll isn't a fish, we don't want either of them. Now I am going to the brook to wash this molasses from my sticky eyes."

So Buster was safe from all the eagles. On and on he hopped through the woods, carrying Bunty's doll. Suddenly he heard a shout:

"Avast and belay! Where are you, Buster boy?"

"That is Bosun," murmured the Rabbit Scout. "I guess my daddy is with him." Then Buster called: "I'm here! I'm coming to you!"

"Did you get Priscilla away from the eagle, Buster?" asked Bunty.

"Yes, I did. I have Priscilla safe. I stuck up the eagle's eyes with my molasses gun."

"Good for you, Buster boy!" shouted Bosun.

"You are a brave Rabbit Scout!" said Uncle Wiggily.

A few moments later, Buster hopped out of the woods and joined the rescue party on the shore of Frog Pond near the small boat.

"We were just coming to look for you," said Uncle Wiggily. "You should not have chased away by yourself, Buster."

"I guess it wasn't the right

"Yes, Buster, you did. You are my hero," said Bunty as she took Priscilla in her paws. Then Bunty gave Buster a nice kiss.

"Now we must all get back to the raft," said Uncle Wiggily. Away they sailed in the small boat and were soon safe aboard. The raft sail, which had been lowered, was hoisted again. Away blew the raft across Frog Pond.

But, suddenly, there was a jump and a thump.

"What is that, Bosun?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I think, sir," barked the old sea dog, "that we have run aground. We are caught fast, Cap'n Wiggily!"

G. Griffiths and Rev. J. L. Clertue officiating. Interment was in Royal Oak Burial Park. McCall Brothers were in charge of arrangements.

More Requests For Certificates

Inauguration soon of the new old-age pension plan has stepped up the tempo of work of the vital statistics branch of the provincial department of health and welfare.

While officials keep no count of the number of applications for birth certificates to prove pension eligibility, they say the number has increased sharply in the past month.

British Columbia birth records go back to 1872. But where birth records have not been kept, baptismal and marriage certificates, containing dates of birth, are regarded as good proof of age.

Higher Death Toll Result Of Boost in B.C. Traffic

The continuing increase in the number of cars using British Columbia's highways is being reflected in a higher rate of deaths, injuries and property damage.

Figures from the provincial motor vehicle branch show licenses issued to the end of July for 270,289 motor vehicles and motorcycles, an increase of 12.48 per cent over the 240,302 in the same period of 1950.

Highway accidents increased from 8,858 to 10,126 in the same period.

Accidents this year resulted in injuries to 3,334 and deaths to 101, compared with 2,331 injuries and 59 deaths in 1950.

Property damage in highway accidents climbed from $1,841, 874 to $2,751,518, an increase of 49.39 per cent.

In July of this year 1,528 accidents killed 28 persons and injured 644.

This compares with 1,049 accidents in July, 1950, which killed 14 and injured 378.

Property damage amounted to $465,922 in July, 1951, compared with $290,799 in July, 1950.

Speed Sought In Decision On Milk Price

Criticism of past delays in cabinet decisions affecting the milk industry in B.C. and an urgent request for speedy action on findings of the recent milk board hearings were voiced in a letter to Premier Byron Johnson Tuesday from the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

The letter said that although federation members had blamed the milk board for delays between board hearings and published orders putting new price regulations into effect, "it might very well be that actual responsibility for delays in the past may lie with the cabinet."

The organization, representing the majority of dairy farmers in the province, recommended a speedy decision covering milk board hearings in Victoria, Aug. 13.

ESPECIALLY NOW

"At no time," the letter continued, "has the avoidance of delay been so necessary, when the farmers in this area, faced with low returns in proportion to their operating costs and faced with a lack of feed through extended drought, are showing an inclination to sell off their herds to the packing houses, thus, aggravating a shortage of milk to consumers this winter. This is already expected in both the lower Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island."

The letter was signed by Charles E. Wallis, secretary-manager of the federation.

Petition Sent By Residents Of West Bay

The city has received another petition opposing rezoning of a section of West Bay for industrial purposes.

Total of 160 Victoria West residents have signed the petition which followed close on the heels of a 450-name petition submitted last week.

The petition contended it would be "poor return for good citizenship" if the city council allowed erection of a sawmill at 620 Seaford Street.

J. A. Stewart, 621 Seaford Street, wrote to the city making a similar protest. The proposed mill, he explained, would be directly across the street from his home. He cites cases where mills have been erected in the city, later abandoned and left in "horrible shape."

Residents, he claimed, would be justified in asking for lower assessment.

Permits Total $24,500

Central Saanich building permits values reached $24,500 during August while its more densely populated neighbor of Esquimalt recorded permits valued at $37,670.

The Central Saanich total value was on 10 permits, Reeve Pickles reported.

In Esquimalt, permits were issued for three homes, valued at $19,000 and 17 miscellaneous permits valued at $18,670. Total values this year are $717,143, including a $370,000 school additions permit.

At Oak Bay, nine dwelling permits were valued at $90,800 while the total 87 dwelling permits issued to date were 283, valued at values this year totaled $927,000, $1,003,437.

Closure For Fishing In Effect

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5 (CP). A history-making move caused by this summer's drought has dealt a blow to British Columbia's commercial fishermen.

Department of Fisheries announced today that due to "dangerously low water levels in many salmon streams," closure of commercial fishing areas will go into effect immediately.

Some of the areas involved have never been closed this way before.

Particularly affected will be catches of northern pinks and early runs of coho and chum which are now in the height of their season.

Following is the closure list effective immediately:

Skeena and Naas: All seining closed.

Grenville-Prince: Prince Channel only open; gillnetting but no seining.

Bundale: No commercial fishing with exception of Whale Channel.

Bella Bella: Closed with exception of Seaford and Matheson Channels above Oscar Pass.

Rivers and Smith Inlets: Open to seiners and gillnets larger than 6 1/2 inch mesh.

West Coast: North of Pachena Point and with exception of Alberni Canal, all closed.

Seymour Inlet, Alert Bay, Quathasket: All closed except Broughton Straits, Cormorant Channel, Blackfish Sound, Johnstone Straits, Discovery Passage.

District No. 1: Fraser River and Howe Sound not affected.

All gillnet fishermen are forthwith ordered to use large 6 1/2 inch mesh or greater.

Centralization Of Records Being Resumed

Centralization of district office records in hospital insurance headquarters in Victoria is going ahead again following a temporary delay while management engineers analyzed the program. Health and Welfare Minister Douglas Turnbull said yesterday.

The firm of Stevenson & Kellogg, retained by the hospital insurance inquiry board, has approved the program, Mr. Turnbull said.

Centralization of records will mean that Victoria headquarters will have an up-to-the-minute accounting of every registrant and all bills will be sent out from Victoria, he explained.

Following centralization, district offices in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster will remain open to collect premiums from those who wish to pay directly.

Offices in these cities will no longer have any records of individual accounts, Mr. Turnbull explained.

Garage Bid Turned Down

Saanich municipal council Tuesday night rejected application of A. Burnham to construct a 24-by-40-foot garage on a 50-foot lot on Hastings Street.

The application previously had been passed by the town planning commission over protests of neighbors. Size of the garage contravened the municipal building by-law, council was told.

Councillors also turned down four other applications. J. M. Bailey, 60 Sims Avenue, was refused permission to complete an upstairs apartment in Victoria district. The firm of Pitt and Holt, 601 Esquimalt Road, was denied permission to convert 2888 Heath Drive into three suites. S. W. Creelman, 3235 Linwood Avenue was refused permission to keep 24 chickens.

Application of John Reid, 832 Darwin Avenue, to complete a house on Darwin Avenue as a duplex, also was denied.

Building inspector J. S. Taylor reported all applications were contrary to zoning by-laws.

Council decided to obtain information on leased wire charges on installation of a street siren at Lodge and Quadra Streets.

Estimate of $850 was given by a company for the siren installation.
